DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-4 and 29-32 are drawn to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired spatial parameter, classified in class 382, subclass 118.
 - II. Claims 5-22 and 33-54 are drawn to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired orientation, classified in class 382, subclasses 103 and 197.
 - III. Claims 38-47 and 56-60 are drawn to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired chromatic parameters, classified in class 348, subclass 644.

Inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I, II and III are related as combination, subcombination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed (claims 1 and 29) does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention I (the combination) is directed to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving any desired spatial parameter and claims 1 and 29 do not contain limitations that are (a) directed to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired orientation as recited in claims 5 and 33, and (b) directed to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired chromatic parameters as recited in claims 23 and 55. The subcombinations has separate utilities such as invention II is directed to a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired orientation and invention III is directed to a method and system for encoding image data with respect to color information of pixels.

Inventions II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, subcombination III has separate utility such as a method of digital image processing using face detection for achieving a desired chromatic parameters. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

The examiner has required restriction between combination and subcombination inventions. Where applicant elects a subcombination, and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a).

The examiner has required restriction between subcombinations usable together. Where applicant elects a subcombination and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a).

Applicant is advised that if any claim presented in a continuation or divisional application is anticipated by, or includes all the limitations of, a claim that is allowable in the present application, such claim may be subject to provisional statutory and/or nonstatutory double patenting rejections over the claims of the instant application.

Therefore, inventions I, II and III represent inventions that are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different subject matter and different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
